PRODUCTIVITY

The digitally enabled world threatens the lifeblood of your organisation: its productivity.

What are you doing to help leaders and their teams stay focused in a sea of distractions and conflicting demands?

In a 24/7 era with back-to-back meetings, increased connectivity often leads to turbulent conditions. Email, instant messages, social networks and online media provide an endless stream of potential distractions that consume ever-growing portions of a workers' time.

Rapid technological shifts and increasing globalisation make the problem more acute. Complex environments give rise to complicated organisations: people occupy multiple roles with competing priorities and extending stakeholder networks.

This is why leaders' capabilities for driving performance and increasing productivity are now so critical. In a world where stable future visions are diminishing, knowing the organisation's 'why' drives focused decision-making even in changing circumstances. Establishing work climates where relationships thrive promotes the self-awareness, collective ownership and shared accountability necessary to reach peak productivity.

PCI brings global expertise to help you tackle this challenge. We are world-shaping specialists who are helping nearly half of FTSE100 companies develop workforces fit for the modern realities of work.

Everyone attending our productivity programmes leaves with the mindset, tools and behaviours to sustain focus even through the unrelenting distractions of an 'always on' work environment.

Depending on your specific organisational needs, we can show your people how to build a sense of purpose in teams, to build trust, inclusivity, and to make the wise decisions that lead to commitment and accountability for delivering results.

They will learn different approaches for working on self, for supporting others and for leading the team. They will develop new capabilities for managing change, communicating with impact and holding others to account.

It's a mix of taught and experiential content that stimulates reflection, coaching and effective time, priority and performance management.

I want it! What now?

If so, let's start with a conversation, potentially a courageous one, but definitely one to set your team, your organisation and your leaders on a path to learning and more sustainable high performance.
